

LISTENING AT BIGGER SCALE

Story-based participatory sensemaking in complex contexts

Participatory narrative sensemaking is an innovative approach that guides interventions in complex systems while strengthening the relationships among diverse stakeholders - combining numbers and data analytics with stories and collective wisdom.

To get a felt sense of the approach and its applications, join the free virtual workshop:

- get a first-hand experience of the power of micro narratives
- see how participatory narrative sensemaking can be used for a variety of purposes - from strategic planning to measuring social impact to listening to your communities/networks/organisations to celebrating major milestones
- get inspired by practical applications and case studies
- contribute your vision of the future in the area that matters to you the most and help others and the European Commission see and plan for #OurFutures

When: 8 April 2022 (10.00 - 12.00 CET); via Zoom

Where: click here to register for the free online intro workshop

Hosts: Steff Deprez and Nele Claeys of Voices That Count, a collaborative network of experts and practitioners who use narrative and actor-centered approaches to understand complex realities within organisations or projects.

For a deep-dive into participatory narrative sensemaking and its applications, join our in-person two-day workshop in Ljubljana \(16 - 17 May 2022\).